B	FOR SAN FRANCISCO'S FAMILIES	3
	San Francisco is the only major American city with fewer children today than ten years ago. The high cost of living, long waiting lists for childcare and a shortage of family friendly housing contribute to this alarming trend. We need to make San Francisco a more family-friendly city.	12 15 12 8
	The City's current policies on leave for parents need improvement. Currently, City workers who have families are faced with taking time off without pay during the extremely important time when a child first joins the family. This measure closes that gap and will help the City recruit and retain employees who value families as well as public service. The measure embraces all of San Francisco's diverse families, including foster families and families that choose adoption.	11 13 13 14 12 10 1
	By adopting such measures as equal benefits for domestic partners, subsidized childcare slots, the Convention to End Discrimination Against Women, and the Equal Access to Services law, San Francisco has been a leader in setting public policies that promote equality, help working families, and set a positive example for the public and private sectors. Let's lead the nation once again with this landmark measure!	11 11 13 12 14 2
B	PROPOSITION I IS FISCALLY RESPONSIBLE	5
	Proposition I is fiscally responsible because it requires that employees use any existing paid leave before becoming eligible for the program. The measure puts cost controls in the San Francisco Charter and ensures that no employee may	12 12 12
