DRAG HOLIDAYS

queer necessarily. They love and accept it, and we need more of that. It doesn't need to be ghettoized and isolated. It needs to be a community," said Drollinger.

There's never been a more important time for dancing and celebration, Drollinger said.

Many queer club owners and LGBTQ+ people are experiencing grief amid escalating anti-LGBTQ political rhetoric and violence including the Nov. 19 mass shooting at Club Q in Colorado, in which five people were killed and 18 injured.

In San Francisco, mourners held a vigil the weekend before Thanksgiving at Harvey Milk Plaza in the Castro neighborhood honoring the lives lost at Club Q.

"It is hard going into this festive season and to be hit with this brutal reminder of what has been brewing and propaganda about the gay, lesbian and transgender community and really targeting drag performers and trans folks," Drollinger said.

"What is our obligation to our community in these times? It is to stand there in the face of adversity and keep dancing. Keep smiling. And push through and be that beacon."
